DAILY RECORD-UNION

MONDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1888

Because it is my deliberate judgment that the prosperity of America is mainly due to its system of protective laws, I urge that Germany has not reached that point where it is necessary to imitate the tariff system of the United States.—Prince Bismarck's Speech to the German Reichstag.

I unite with you as an American citizen in the expression of the hope that we shall soon witness the adoption of such measures as will win the Irish heart, and give to the helpless and poverty-stricken in the land of their fathers contentment and prosperity.—General Harrison, April 8, 1887.

"Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Minister of England has ever done."—London Spectator.

"The only benefit England ever receives from Irelandmen is when they emigrate to America and vote for free trade."—London Sunday Times.

THE DISMISSAL OF COMMISSIONER SPARKS.

If the Democratic organs in this State have supposed that the reasons for the dismissal of W. A. J. Sparks, and the full political significance of that act on the part of Grover Cleveland, is to draw attention in this campaign, they are hereby so disappointed. Commissioner Sparks took office under the existing Administration with the distinct understanding that he was to be permitted to put an end to the land frauds, land grabbing and the dishonest practices generally which had for some years characterized the land policy of the United States. No man ever approached a duty more thoroughly determined to discharge it faithfully than did Mr. Sparks. If there was anything wanting to prove the utter duplicity and low cunning of Mr. Cleveland, it was the manner of Commissioner Sparks' dismissal. Sparks began the administration of the Land Department of the United States by a strict enforcement of the statutes governing the alienation of Government lands. He had not proceeded far in this direction before he discovered that the people of this country most familiar with the significance of the policy he inaugurated, best competent to judge of the value of that policy, were strongly in sympathy with him. He was proving conclusively the sympathy of the National Administration with the settler, and the determination of that Administration to prevent the land thieves from acquiring lands under false pretenses. After he had acquired a high popularity with many classes he encountered the hostility of the Northern Pacific Railroad, by a decision which may be summarized by saying that it disappointed the avarice of that corporation. In fact, Mr. Sparks had for the most part, during his administration, incurred the hostility of all the land syndicates, all the usurpers of the public domain who had inclosed vast areas for cattle ranges, of all the cattle kings who were driving settlers off the fertile lands in Dakota, that these lands might remain free ranges for the lordly herdsmen; of the castle thieves who had invaded the Indian Territory and were pasturing the lands set apart and made sacred for the support of the Indians; and, in short, of all classes whose schemes of rapacity and plunder had for their object the acquisition of the land which belonged to the whole people; and while at the very height of his career, a controversy between himself and Secretary Lamar was engendered, foisted and developed by the President himself.

The Secretary wrote the President a letter in which he declared that Mr. Sparks was acting in an insubordinate manner, and that his Excellency, the President, must either procure a new Secretary or a new Commissioner of the General Land Office. Mr. Lamar offered himself as a buffer between the President and public opinion. To have discharged Commissioner Sparks' would have been to repudiate the policy he had inaugurated, of requiring the cattle kings to open their fences, repairing the great corporations who had received grants of land to adjust their land grants strictly in accordance with the rights of the settler. The President was relieved of all his difficulty by a controversy between the Secretary of the Interior and his subordinate. In his letter to Mr. Sparks he informs him that the controversy is of a nature which left ground for honest difference of opinion. He states that while he is about to dismiss him, that the Commissioner will be pleased to learn, as an honest man, that the policy he inaugurated, and upon which "we were all agreed"—to use the President's language—would be continued in the General Land Office. He is also, in dismissing the subordinate of the Secretary, hopes that prosperity and success will attend all his after life; and thus, with the blessing of Heaven upon his head, he seizes the mantle with which Commissioner Sparks has endowed himself, strips him of it, kicks him into the middle of the street, and reminds him that the policy which he inaugurated, and upon which "we were all agreed," really originated with his Excellency himself. It was in this manner that Grover Cleveland commanded the Commissioner of the General Land Office, approved of the policy he had inaugurated, appropriated all the glory of that policy to himself, and at the same time kicked the faithful servant of the people out of office, and appointed the Secretary to a position on the Supreme Bench.

To recapitulate, a controversy arose between the Government and a land grant railroad as to whether a certain piece of land should be given to a settler or to the corporation. Mr. Sparks, after careful review of all the facts, decided in favor of the settler, and an appeal was taken to Mr. Lamar, the Secretary of the Interior under Grover Cleveland. Mr. Lamar decided against the conclusions of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and in favor of the corporation. The Commissioner wrote a respectful letter protesting against the conclusions of the Secretary. Here was the long-sought opportunity of Grover Cleveland. The Commissioner had dared to file a protest against the action of his superior. A subordinate had asked that the Secretary review his findings, and on behalf of the settler presented a clear, conclusive, unanswerable argument, thus committing an act of insubordination. The President, after reading the decision of the Commissioner, the over-riding decision of the Secretary of the Interior, the mild and respectful protest of the Commissioner, informed the latter that it was his duty to sustain his Secretary as against a subordinate. He does not say the Secretary was right or that substantial justice was subserved by his decision. He says, in effect: "The only thing I can see in this controversy is that it has arisen between my Secretary of the Interior and one of his subordinates, and because of the superior dignity of the office of Secretary of the Interior to that of Commissioner of the General Land Office, I decide in favor of the Secretary and against the Commissioner."

Such was the spirit, if not the language of Grover Cleveland in dismissing Mr.

Sparks from office. To prove how little he cared for the merit of the controversy, how indifferent he was to the rights of the settler, and how careful he was of the rights of the great corporation, he immediately promoted the Secretary of the Interior to a position on the Supreme Bench of the United States. In the face of these facts, the pretense of the Democratic party that Grover Cleveland is the enemy of great corporations, trusts and monopolies, is of a piece with all the other hypocritical pretences which should make party outliers and its professions of friendship for the people disgraced.

CLEVELAND AND THE SCOTT BILL.

The full significance of the claim on the part of the Democrat that the Scott bill was an Administration measure should not be overlooked. If Mr. Cleveland and his Cabinet conceived that measure, and the measure is as effective as is hoped for by the people of the Pacific coast generally, what apology have the Democrats for Mr. Cleveland's indifference during the entire course of his administration to the Chinese evil, complaint of which has reached his ears through so many sources? The entire claim of the Democratic party presents Mr. Cleveland in the light of a hypocritical pretender, for if the Scott bill is a judicious measure, if it is consistent with treaty obligations; if it is constitutional; if, in short, it should be passed now, why was it not proposed and passed at an earlier date? After nearly four years of administration, characterized by the most indifferent incapacity, by stiffnessness on the subject of the Chinese question, and at the same time by professions of sympathy with the demands of the Pacific coast for abatement of the Chinese evil, Mr. Cleveland receives the renomination for the Presidency, and on the very eve of election he proposes an effective measure, which measure it was competent at any past time for Congress to have passed. Then his sudden interest in the question is due solely to his interest in Cleveland, and not in the subject under consideration, or in the people of the Pacific coast. This important organization is yet but in its infancy. A strong organization, they would be at the mercy of each other; all would be competing, undercutting, and supplanting each other. While this has worked so successfully with green fruit, a like benefit would follow with dried fruit. The market has already been started a few weeks and already the products it proposes to handle have appreciated in value. The market is now established, and we do not know that Dr. Price's Favorite Prescription will restore their organs to a normal state, and make them youthful and beautiful once more. For the bills to which the daughter of Dr. Price are now attached, we do not know that "Priestly Goods" is a foreign remedy. It is the only medicine sold by druggists under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be returned. See guarantees on bottle wrapper.

An Estimation of the Premium.—Other forms than those above would apply to the woman who could see her youthful beauty fading away without a pang of regret. Many a woman becomes prematurely old and haggard because of functionless, useless, and unnecessary dress. We do not know that Dr. Price's Favorite Prescription will restore their organs to a normal state, and make them youthful and beautiful once more. For the bills to which the daughter of Dr. Price are now attached, we do not know that "Priestly Goods" is a foreign remedy.

The meeting was called to order by the Vice-President, H. Weinstock. He said that the meeting was to be held in the hall of the five county business with a rich soil and a superb climate, these of themselves will not bring us wealth, we make good use of our opportunities. The fruit-growers have done something in the way of advertising, but the result is that they have gone near far enough. This important organization is yet but in its infancy. A strong organization, they would be at the mercy of each other; all would be competing, undercutting, and supplanting each other. While this has worked so successfully with green fruit, a like benefit would follow with dried fruit. The market has already been started a few weeks and already the products it proposes to handle have appreciated in value. The market is now established, and we do not know that Dr. Price's Favorite Prescription will restore their organs to a normal state, and make them youthful and beautiful once more.
